State Board Votes $200 Increase; Students Will Study Alternatives

By Don Pendley
Editorial Assistant

TRENTON — A bill to increase the room and board fees for the coming academic year has been passed by the New Jersey State Board of Higher Education. Included in the passage of the bill, however, was an agreement that the price raise to $1000 would be investigated by a committee of students from the state colleges.

A group of Montclair State students, headed by Jesse J. Young, chairman of the Joint Dormitories and Off-Campus Students' Committee, went to the public meeting of the Board of Higher Education in Trenton last Friday to convince the Board to postpone their decision on raising the rates until all the alternatives could be looked into.

Young cited that the students at the various state colleges were not consulted upon the raising of the rates, and stated that any raise in the dorm rates would also affect the off-campus rates.

Included in the bill is the approval of the lease for the new dormitory to be built at MSC.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT . . .

Although the dormitory room fees are scheduled to rise for the coming year, facilities such as this Stone Hall study room will not feel the additional funds in the way of improvements. Increased fees do not mean improved facilities.

Social Science Dept. Prepares for Division

By Jane Conforth
Staff Reporter

The social science department is preparing for a division which will become effective in September.

School of Social and Behavioral Sciences is the working name which has been tagged to the new social science department. With the name comes additional changes in course and major offerings.

Five different majors will be available in the social sciences: history, political science, sociology, economics and transcultural studies. The last named is a disciplinary science which will incorporate history, anthropology and geography, and emphasize studies of Asia and Africa.

Anthropology and geography will have their own departments but will not be offered as majors.

In a recent interview, Dr. Phillip Cohen, chairman of the social science department, said of the new program, "I've worked on it and I'm very enthusiastic about it. We want to be as relevant as anybody. We want to meet the needs of those who want to go on to graduate school or government or industry, as well as teaching. If we make a mistake or two, that's to our advantage too, because you can't find out what's right unless you make changes."

One of these is that most freshmen at MSC will probably be liberal arts students. They will have some time to look around and then will choose their major in the sophomore year.

Freshmen will no longer be required to take World Civilization I and II. Instead they will elect six semester hours from a series of courses in the School of Social and Behavioral Sciences. Some of these courses are African Civilization and Contemporary Europe from 1914 to the Present.

Webster Welcomes Coeds

By George Gonos
Staff Reporter

The Visitation Committee of Webster Hall met with President Richardson last Wednesday to present him with the final draft of a proposal for a closed door visitation policy. After evaluating the proposal, President Richardson permitted the initiation of the program last Saturday as an experiment, pending additional consideration. Also attending the meeting were Dean Blanton; Mr. Richard Taubald, coordinator of mens' housing and Mr. Richards, director of Webster Hall.

Before a permanent policy is accepted, however, legal points must be clearer in the final document.

The decision permitting visitation last weekend was based on figures that showed MSC in relation to other colleges in the United States. Taubald presented research done by the Association of College and University Housing Officers. Of 285 schools studied, 108 allowed room visitation at regular hours each week, 58 per cent of these institutions permitted the door to be closed.

Of colleges that do not allow regular visitation, many practiced "open house" or visitation on an infrequent schedule.

In northern New Jersey, the following three colleges presently have closed door policies: Fairleigh Dickinson University, Drew University and Rutgers University.

Bob Moller, president of Webster Hall commenting on the meeting said, "Although President Richardson found some slight discrepancies in the policy, he was very receptive to the idea." He added that, "the visitation committee . . . was in total

The visitation committee consists of James Costabile, John Diamant, Bruce Kinter, Russell Layne and Moller.

Glassboro Aids Establishment Of Sea Lab

GLASSBORO — Plans for a sea lab for the New Jersey state colleges are a step closer to completion. The Glassboro State College Board of Trustees approved a proposal to allow the college to join the Marine Science Consortium.

The consortium, a partnership composed of colleges, industries and state institutions, is seeking to establish a site for research and the study of marine biology.

Glassboro is the second school or officially apply for membership in the consortium. Gloucester County Community College joined in December 1968.

Donald Zalusky, assistant professor of science at Glassboro, explained that Glassboro's move would encourage other colleges to apply, as Glassboro originated plans for the consortium.

"Member schools may use the facilities in any way they see fit," Zalusky stated, "Professors may bring their classes to paint seascapes or to study oceanography."

A scuba-diving school is the first, planned activity for the program. This activity, which will last one week, will be taught by specialists recognized by the National Association for Underwater Instructors and the New York Department of Education.

The consortium is examining seashore sites with the space and facilities needed for classrooms and labs.

Miss MSC Finalists: 'Talent . . . Personality'

By Arlene Petty
Staff Reporter

For the first time, the women of Delta Theta Psi will assist the men of Phi Lambda Pi as they jointly sponsor the Miss Montclair State Pageant, one of the preliminaries for the Miss New Jersey Pageant.

A total of 45 applicants were judged on talent, poise and personality and narrowed down to 10 finalists last week in Memorial Auditorium. The girls will go on to the final competition on March 7, and will be judged by three faculty members, Dr. George Horn, Dr. Schleede and Dr. Asterito. The 10 finalists are Jeanne Brown, Ellen Fitzpatrick, Carol Tintle, Doris Lee, Faye Witcher, Linda Kinch, Chris Kinz, Irene Haluska, Karen Tullo and Pat Waage.

The student who wins the title of Miss Montclair State will also receive a $150 scholarship, as well as a trophy. The first runner-up is given a $50 scholarship, and the girl voted Miss Congeniality will be presented with a trophy.

Miss Montclair State will also become the representative to the Miss New Jersey Pageant with all expenses paid. She will have the added honor of being the Homecoming Queen.

The pageant will be held in Memorial Auditorium at 8 p.m. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the sponsoring organizations for $1. Tickets will be available at the door for $1.25.

During intermission at the pageant, entertainment will be provided by the women of Kappa Sigma Rho (winners of the Greek Sing), and the Good Life Trio, one female and two male students from MSC.

Hastiness of Trustees' Act Protested by CHS Parents

By Roberta Kuehl
Ass't News Editor

"The whole group is boiling because of inadequate hearing by the trustees" is Mr. Charles Burkeley's view of the proposed phasing out of College High. As a leader of the College High parents, Mr. Burkeley expressed concern for the academic future of those students presently attending this demonstration school.

"Legislative before legal measures" is the action Mr. Burkeley advocates to determine why all four state college demonstration schools are simultaneously designated for closing. To investigate this and other issues, such as financial aid from the state, an association of all the involved schools was recently formed.

The assembly chambers of the Trenton State House will be the site of a public hearing on the proposed closing of the demonstration school for interested parties on March 6 at 10 a.m.

At this time spokesmen from the College High parents and faculty, the MSC Board of Trustees, and the State Commission will present their proposed testimony, which must be reduced to writing by March 4 in order to be heard.

The State Commission was newly created by the state legislature and is composed mainly of assemblymen. One of its members, Assemblyman John J. Fekety (D-Hudson County) refused to state his position on the College High issue at this time, since throughout this situation he hopes to maintain an open mind and listen to all sides.

'She Stoops to Conquer': Semi-Finalist in Festival

Jeanne Schneider
Staff Reporter

The cast of SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER has been part of the nation-wide American College Theatre Festival. MSC's Players were chosen as one of 30 semi-finalist from nearly 200 campus drama groups. The Festival is the first of its kind to be held in the United States. Ten outstanding plays have been chosen to be presented at the American College Theatre Festival in Washington D.C. from April 28 through May 12, 1969.

Dr. Clyde W. McElroy, adviser to Players and director of SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER, regrets that the cast has not been chosen to perform at the festival. Nevertheless, he is proud of the cast and the recognition they have received for their production.

American Airlines, the Friends of the Kennedy Center and the Smithsonian Institution have cosponsored the event. The American Educational Theatre Association (AETA) and the American National Theatre and Academy have worked together to arrange productions. These groups are interested in presenting evidence of the progress being made in theatre arts throughout the nation's universities.

Further aims of AETA are to stimulate young actors and to form a bridge between college theatre and the professional stage. Recognition will be given to the theatre as a part of the nation's culture. Citizens, legislators and visitors from other countries will be made aware of this part of the culture of the United States. It is hoped that, in the future, similar festivals will be held to continue the development of these goals.

Gawley Heads Faculty

The MSC Faculty Association has chosen its officers for the new year. The incoming president is Dr. Irwin H. Gawley, chairman of the chemistry department.

The other officers are: vice-president, Mr. Marshall A. Butler; secretary, Miss Ellen Kauffman; treasurer, Mr. Albert D. Rossetti.

The outgoing president, Mr. James Pettegrove, has been elected the MSC representative to the Associated New Jersey State College Faculty (ANJSCF).

The elections occurred at the monthly meeting of the Faculty Association on Feb. 18 in the Studio Theatre. The new officers were selected from a slate prepared by the Nominating Committee.

Mary McKnight: MSC's Happy Information Lady

By Mike Andrea
Staff Reporter

In this era of student revolts and teacher strikes, it's hard to find an educator who is perfectly happy with her work. Mrs. Mary McKnight is one of those rare, content people and she's here at MSC as Coordinator of Public Information. She has the task of publicizing MSC, its students and faculty.

Mrs. McKnight is usually the first person to know when anything is going to happen at the college although she admits that she sometimes misses an activity. In an interview she related one of the mishaps. She happened to be on campus one Saturday when she saw numerous visitors on campus and hadn't the vaguest idea why they were here. She later found that they were next year's freshmen and their parents, attending an open house.

This mishap is about as rare as snow in June, since this reporter has found Mrs. McKnight to be an ever-available source of valuable news and information.

This interview was the first time that Mrs. McKnight became the center of news instead of the distributor of it. When asked for information about herself, she asked, "Why would you ever want to have a story about me?"

She revealed that she really was a journalist at heart. Her family has a newspaper background, dating back to her grandfather, who was a Civil War veteran. Although she says, "I'm a Yankee at heart," Mrs. McKnight was born and raised in the deep south of Georgia. She graduated from Agnes Scott College and received her master's degree in English at Vanderbilt University.

After graduation, she became interested in publicity and journalism and worked for several papers in the South, including the Chattanooga News Free Press. After moving north, she worked on the Montclair Times until 1966, when she came to MSC. She has been working in public information ever since.

Mrs. McKnight is very enthusiastic about her work here because she likes the students, faculty and campus community. "I couldn't support anything I didn't like, and that's why I like Montclair. I'm proud of both the administration and students alike."

Although she is happy at MSC, Mrs. McKnight is not willing to sit back in contentment. She has a few goals in sight among them attending New York University and taking courses, "just for fun," as she stated it.

Concerning her work in the future at MSC, Mrs. McKnight said she would be most grateful if students and faculty with interesting careers or pastimes would contact her so she could publicize them. "After all, it's the students and faculty who make a college." She would also like to initiate a photography contest at the college for pictures taken of the campus community.

Players Excited with New School of Creative Arts

By Ed Musto

The proposed School of the Creative Arts, which would unify the speech arts, fine arts and music departments has stirred a great deal of excitement, particularly among Players. The prospect of added faculty members in the theatre department and new courses dealing with more advanced aspects of the theatre brings with it the possibilities of fresh ideas and innovations that will give the theatre at MSC unlimited potentialities. Perhaps even for the theatre in general.

Consider the facts. The academic theatre does not have the financial obligations and considerations that play havoc, with and at times seem to dominate, the professional theatre. The first purpose, and sometimes the only purpose of the professional theatre is for those involved to make some money. Altruism and theatrical devotion aside, an actor cannot eat, a scriptor pay the landlord with a compliment. Broadway producers are usually men who are fairly well off and they are also men who plan to stay that way. "Art" does not get them a Cadillac, "Hello Dolly" will. A play must look like it will sell if it is to be produced. Few plays of true quality make Broadway, it is hard to sell intellectualism and the true theatrical experience. Since the average Broadway show costs well over $200,000 to produce, it is difficult to put on plays with limited appeal.

As a result of this, over the last 10 years there has been a huge movement to what is known as off-Broadway, or anywhere in New York that is not on Broadway. One can put on a good play off-Broadway with 10,000 dollars or less such as The Boys in the Band and the Fantastics. The chances of great financial loss are much less off-Broadway and more risks can be taken. As of this moment, intellectual and experimental theatre are alive and well and living a good deal away from Mr. Cohen.

Prices for sets are skyrocketing, actors want more money, writers will want more royalties and ticket prices will continue to go up. Experimental play will have trouble being produced and many profound attempts may wind up slighted. When this begins to happen the true rise of the university theatre will begin. Authors will choose some college with adequate facilities to debut their plays. The academic theatre will start doing first run shows like never before. The financial security inherent on the campus and the decreased expenses involved in production will give the academic theatre freedom.

Professional theatrics will be left to musicals. The serious, thoughtful drama, both classical and contemporary, will remain for the colleges to put on.

Relating these theories to the projects events at MSC, it is obvious how important it will be to support the College of the Arts concept as a vital one for the improvement of an already fine theatre at MSC. Perhaps by the next generation; it will be more meaningful to see theatre at MSC than on that famous street in New York, you know, what'sitsname; where the theatre used to be king but where it died a slow and painful death.

World Campus Afloat is a college that does more than broaden horizons. It sails to them and beyond.

Once again, beginning in October of 1969, the World Campus Afloat program of Chapman College and Associated Colleges and Universities will take qualified students, faculty and staff into the world laboratory.

In-port programs relevant to fully-accredited coursework taught aboard ship add the dimension of personal experience to formal learning.

Classes are held six days a week at sea aboard the s.s. Ryndam which has been equipped with classrooms, laboratories, library, student union, dining room and dormitories.

Chapman College now is accepting applications for the Fall and Spring semesters of the 1969-70 academic year. Fall semesters depart New York for ports in Western Europe and the Mediterranean, Africa and South America, ending in Los Angeles. Spring semesters circle the world from Los Angeles through the Orient, India and South Africa to New York.

The Price of Education

(The following editorial contains portions from a speech presented by Jesse J. Young, chairman of the dormitory and off-campus student committee, to the State Board of Higher Education in Trenton. The committee represented the MSC students who are against the proposed increase in state college dormitory fees.)

The purpose of the student committee of dormitory and off-campus students is to defer action on the proposed increase in room rents until such a time when a more equitable solution can be found. However, last Friday, the $184 increase had been approved by the State Board for Montclair and Trenton. Due to student response, a committee was immediately formed by the Board to investigate alternate proposals to the 64 per cent rise slated for next September.

It was believed that one of the purposes for the establishment of the state colleges was to supply teachers at a time of need as well as to provide advanced education for all people regardless of their socio-economic backgrounds.

However, it is obvious that although the intentions of the state are to provide quality education at lower costs than private universities, that the state is more and more dependent upon the student to fund his own education.

The students at the state colleges all recognize that the state is subsidizing their education, paying approximately $900 toward each student at MSC as opposed to the $350 the individual student pays. However, we must remember that only last spring, the state requested a $200 increase in state college tuition, an increase of 133 per cent.

In view of this $384 increase within a one year period, the composition of the student body at the state colleges could very well change. i.e., the students for whom the state colleges were originally established will find it more difficult to pay for a state college education.

And since over 50 to 60 per cent of MSC's financial assistance has been cut over last year and the interest on guaranteed bank loans has risen from three to seven per cent (with no government subsidy) the door to financial assistance is closing to the needy student. The Board is therefore partially responsible for hindering the students of New Jersey in their desire to receive a college education.

At present the following suggestions have been made by the MSC student committee for a more equitable solution to the jump in the dorm fees:

1. The state should take on greater amortization by taking responsibility of operation and maintenance of the dormitory facilities, or

2. Each individual college can determine the best way possible for increased revenue.

The needs of the student are many; the state is overlooking many of them in its unwise decision to in one year raise the dorm fees from $818 to not less than $1000.

At Montclair State College the increase would have the dormitory students pay over $1000 for their room and board, however, none of the fee increase would be designated for board. With the rise in dorm room rates, it is conceivable that with the expiration of the present food service contract in 1970, the newly contracted food service might also desire to raise its prices.

And of course the $184 increase does not mean that the present dorm facilities will be improved. Montclair State is scheduled this spring for the construction of a 16-story dormitory. However, the older dormitories will still be in operation. In brief, the extra money will not be used to improve the already dilapidated dorm conditions. Repairs will not come from the increased rates. Although the student is paying more, he is not assured of receiving more for his money.

Presently the Board is reevaluating its poorly planned increase. And although the state is in need of more money to aid higher education, certainly much more feasible and economical solutions can result.

The Underground Press Goes to High School

The following is the second of a four-part series on today's underground press, written by David M. Levine, Montclarion Managing Editor.

The underground press, according to California publisher Leon Fulton is a "significant, impact-making force in the United States today." And across the country underground publications — some handsomely printed and others merely mimeographed — have been springing up in college towns and metropolitan areas for the past 10 years.

According to Fulton, underground papers sell nearly seven million copies each week. And they're read mostly by college students.

BUT THE underground press is entering a new era in its phase of success. High school students in many metropolitan areas have banded together issuing underground papers attacking the administration of local high schools.

The Weekly Reader of New York's Washington Irving High School, Stuyvesant's The Herald Tribune and Bronx Science's Mama are recent examples of New York high school underground journalism.

In their escapades, the high school papers have printed stories critical of school administrations, usually filled with four-letter words, oftentimes papers have been confiscated by administrators and the students distributing the papers have been suspended.

NEW YORK'S largest underground high school paper is The High School Free Press. According to Marianna Milbert, an editor of the "Free Press," the paper was established in January 1968 and has a 20,000 city-wide circulation.

Recently the Free Press ran a series of exposes on city high schools. Jamaica High School principal Louis Schuker was depicted in the exposes as an autocrat "keeping an iron grip" on the school. The article pointed out numerous instances of censorship in the high school paper due to "King Louis" Schuker.

(It was Schuker last Jan. 24 that suspended senior Jeffrey Schwartz for distributing the Free Press. Thereafter, the N.Y. Civil Liberties Union filed a suit in federal court seeking the right of students to distribute literature "not disruptive to the education process.")

THE FREEP, obviously opposed to "the establishment," is a 12-page tabloid newspaper selling for "15 cents on newstands, 5 cents in schools." "Of, by and for liberated high school students" is the motto of the paper, but apparently the Free Press is not all that antiestablishment. The current edition carries six large advertisements for Columbia records.

EARLY IN January Brandeis high student John Segall, 16, was suspended for distributing copies of Brandeis Brief. Described by school officials as "libelous and scurrilous," Segall was informed that he would be transferred to another school.

Defending Segall's right, Civil Liberties director Ira Glasser stated: "The New York Times is sold in schools. If the distinction between it and the student papers is based on content, that's violation of the First Amendment."

Apparently the problem of underground papers is developing into a question of a free press versus the rights of a minor. "You can't run the schools on the basis of legalisms in adult life," asserted New York District Superintendent Nathan Jacobson. "We're dealing with young people."

TWO WEEKS ago Rockland County condemned local high school authorities for confiscating copies of Rat. And in Philadelphia the Board of Education is permitting the distribution of high school underground papers as long as they're "not obscene... libelous... or inciting people to commit unlawful acts."

But Principal C.J. McCormick of Wheaton (Md.) High School recently asserted: In the underground papers "there are articles and advertisements that... are profane, immoral and... could be disruptive to the character of young people."

It Can't Happen Here

To the Editor:

In the Feb. 19 issue of the MONTCLARION, in bold, black type of page three, appears the grim declaration: "Campus Security Inadequate." This article, supported by the findings of a committee of seven — only two are identified — suggests "better cooperation . . . with all the local police departments. A question which the student may have is, who authorized the committee; that is, who specifically, is interested in bringing more police on campus?"

In Berkclair U. at Upperclass, N.J., a similar suggestion appeared in the "student" newspaper. Many authoritarian agencies were then established on campus and when protests finally began, the administration could point to the newspaper and state: "It wasn't us. The students asked for it." Some found this difficult to believe; but after all, there it was in print and newspapers don't lie, right?

One might consider that, after disturbances in colleges across the nation, somebody or another might be alarmed that his turn to "hit the wall" is coming. If I may indulge in under-statement, Montclair State is not Columbia or Berkeley or San Francisco State . . . it's not even the University of Wisconsin. Then again, maybe someone here want to be second to call in the National Guard.

Ellen Mignone, 1971.

Guards Aren't Necessary

To the Editor:

By reading the Feb. 19 issue of the MONTCLARION one would get the impression that there were at least a few girls attacked on campus recently, and at worst, a couple of murders. Of course, we know that is far from being true.

Granted that there were "thefts and acts of vandalism which took place last semester"; but they appeared to be of the kind that could have been prevented by the necessary (and obvious) precautionary measures.

Fourteen guards cannot prevent car thefts; but neither can 1400 if we all decided to put valuable things in our cars and then left them open. Cars have locks for a purpose and so do bedroom doors.

The Feb. 14 issue of the MONTCLARION contained an article entitled, "Night Managers Supervise Life Hall." The article ends with, "Basically because it is the student building it should remain open at night." So what was so alarming about a Life Hall door being open at 1 a.m.?

Your "Since You Asked Me" column showed that the students do not see any need for tighter security on campus. . . .

When there are so many other things that need improvement on campus (and I'm sure no list is needed) I see no immediate reason for money being spent on guards.

Exactly who are the members of the security investigation committee? Who appointed them? What is it really, that we should be protected against?

Zulima Fereaus
graduate assistant, foreign language department.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The night managers supervise Life Hall until 10:30 p.m. when the building is then locked. Since no activities were scheduled in Life Hall for that Saturday night the building should have been locked after the cafeteria closed.

New Images

To the Editor:

My congratulations to the editors and contributors to the New Image for having the moral integrity to also publish their names. Another noteworthy innovation appearing in the last issue was the inclusion of material of a less vindictive nature. However, there were also the typical half-truths, fogged-over issues, and unnecessary cynicism tinged with hypocrisy.

For example: Insley has constantly reiterated the "new left" cliché "participatory democracy," yet he assumes access to an "open campus" and the freedom of speech. Insley also mentions preservation of the ideals upon which this country was founded.

I believe that freedom of speech was one of those ideals. If Insley and his band have the "right" to listen to Mark Rudd then I maintain the "right" to listen to a recruiter on campus. Perhaps if we also bury our heads in the sand the war will go away.

In the latest issue one will also find a sympathy seeking half-truth in the statement that the SDS was not "graced" with an SGA charter. Why not inform the readers that the SDS did not get a charter because they never applied for one? Why they didn't apply is open to speculation but it may be that the unlamented past president was fearful that the issue would be brought up to the student body as a referendum. Such a fear would have been unfounded since even I (a known "enemy" of SDS methodology) would have actively supported their right to a charter if they met existing criteria.

Sorority Offers

$150 Scholarship

By Chris MacMurray
Staff Reporter

The women of Kappa Sigma Rho are now accepting applications for their annual Diane Schmidt scholarship. The scholarship funds were raised from various money-making activities sponsored by the sorority.

The $150 scholarship is in memory of Diane Schmidt, a sorority sister who was killed in a car accident in August of 1966. Any single sophomore or junior girl currently attending Montclair State College is eligible for the scholarship providing her cumulative average is 2.5 or above. Members of Kappa Sigma Rho sorority are not eligible.

The scholarship, now in its second year, was originally suggested by Diane's parents. A donation of $150 towards the first award was made by Mr. Schmidt.

Applications for the award are judged by the sisters of Kappa Sigma Rho on the basis of financial need, scholarship and participation in extracurricular activities.

It is the sorority's desire to obtain more of a response to the scholarship this year. Any girl eligible is encouraged by the sorority to apply.

Applications are available in Mr. Neuner's office which is located in College Hall. The award will be presented at a May assembly.

NSA Fights CAB Ruling Against Youth Fare Halt

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The United States National Student Association (NSA) will fight the recommendations of a Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) examiner calling for the abolition of youth fares as "unjustly discriminatory," and has retained legal counsel to prepare briefs and oral arguments for presentation before the CAB.

The announcement of NSA's action came from Services Division director Alan C. Handell, who noted that at present the Association is the only group representing student users of the airline youth fare which will make arguments before the Federal board.

Abolition of youth fares is being sought by a number of bus companies. NSA will argue that in view of the educational, social, economic and cultural benefits afforded by the youth fares and young adult fares, the fares should not be cancelled.

Written arguments will be presented to the CAB by Feb. 26. Oral arguments will be made at a later date. NSA is being represented by the Washington law firm of Koteen and Burt, who are experts in air fare matters.

Handell urged that students interested in retaining youth fares contact him at USNSA, 2115 S. Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20008.

Registration

Confusing or Consoling?

By Martin J. Fucio
Education Editor

"Mr. Foley bent over backwards to accommodate students," declared Andy Paterna, '69, who worked on registration.

Registration is "not geared to students' needs," claimed Christa Spitzbarth, '70.

The above statement are examples of the varied opinions students and professors hold about the registration held at the beginning of February.

Last September, the registrar's office instituted computerized registration for the entire school. The computer, rather than the students, would pick class time and section. It was hoped that this system would give students what they needed and eliminate long waiting lines for courses. However, registration and course changes remain a confusing process for many people.

Tony Fazio, '72, said that the schedules are so erratic that students, especially commuters, cannot get part time jobs. Judy Wenner, '70, complained that she did not "know the time or the professor" for her courses. "Impossible schedule" was the comment of Mona Smith, '70. Mrs. Smith has classes from 8 a.m. to 6:40 p.m. four days a week.

Robert Smith, '70, observed that the "last people to know (class time and size) were the professors." Smith had a course which kept changing hours until it was finally dropped. Helene Posey, '70, has "seven hours straight" of classes. She could not get her schedule changed. John Schneider, '70, refused to go through the "red tape" and did not bother to change his schedule. James Cassidy, '71, suggested that confusion could be avoided if schedule changes were done by mail.

Criticism also came from faculty circles. "Something has to be done" declared James Keenan, social science department. Keenan said that elective courses are situated at awkward hours for students, so there is consequent overloading and imbalance of sections as students try to get better hours.

"Our problem is classroom accommodations," stated Raymond Jump, education. One of Jump's courses meets three times a week in three different places. Maynard Rich, social science, said that there are no class lists, so that a student does not know for sure what course he is in, and a professor does not know how many are in his classes. Rich complained that there is no way to determine class size, the result being that a professor cannot properly plan his courses.

Although criticism of registration was strong, present registration practices have a number of supporters. "Very systematic" was the description of Charles Boyce, '72. "Mr. Foley handled it very well," stated Robert Monda, '69. Barbara Michalik, '71, exclaimed. "For once it was right for me!" Richard Bennet, '70, had no trouble changing five courses. "Everything worked fine for me," he said. Sue Kotulak, '72, who worked on registration, thought it "went smoothly" considering the large number being served.

Robert Foley
No questions asked

Registration also had faculty support. Dr. Morris McGee, English professor and adviser, stated. "Most of my juniors had very little trouble." Dr. Howard Fox, former chairman of the speech department, feels that advanced registration makes it easier to establish class sections, especially for electives.

The math department, stated chairman Paul Clifford, had advanced schedules out in December. This enabled math majors to iron out their courses ahead of time. However, non-math majors got 5 p.m. classes and were unable to get section changes.

Robert Foley, associate registrar, explained registration problems in a short interview. His office handles 9,000 changes each semester, 8,000 of these "convenience changes," i.e., changes for no other reason than the students' convenience. All of these changes were made with "no questions asked." Foley claimed that students got what they wanted, and the large number of changes resulted in class lists being held up until two weeks after classes started.

Foley stated that part of the difficulty of registration and course changes was that a "significant" number of students were not careful enough when filling out their pre-registration forms and following directions. Many students did not come for their course changes at the hour and day assigned. Foley claimed that freshmen and seniors came at their assigned times, but sophomores and juniors did not, resulting in crowding and long lines. There was no waiting for course changes when time schedules were followed.

No major registration changes are planned for next semester. However, work for change is going on. The college is studying the whole registration procedure. Foley is trying to get student choice of course time and professor. An SGA committee is working on the same problem.

Foley believes that student and faculty time should be spent in learning and teaching. "Registration should inconvenience the college community as little as possible," he said.

Pratt Guides Independent Study

By Susan Johnson
Staff Reporter

Independent study, a relatively new approach to courses in most departments at MSC, is being taken by four of Dr. Samuel Pratt's sociology students. Their course is entitled Introduction to Sociology 200. The four boys are all freshmen.

In the Independent Study approach to a course, the student is responsible for all the material required in the regular course of the same name, but studies the material in a sequence relevant to his interest area. Subjects are covered in greater depth during free time and are discussed at the class meeting time.

The students of Pratt's course are expected to create their own form of study and to submit a tentative idea of what they hope to accomplish during the semester.

They select their own text, a dictionary of their course and a library research manual. The Study of Society by Peter Rose, a book of readings, was the text chosen by this semester's students. The chosen text is not assigned but is used as a starting point and reference for research and discussion. The four students taking this Independent Study course will take turns leading discussions on the required study material. A bibliography will be compiled and a term project presented in any way the student feels will be most meaningful.

The research projects presented by the four students will deal with four patterns in today's society, the revolutionary, the social change leader, the activist supporter of the established norm and criminal-delinquent.

The research will not be a rehash of already published ideas, but will be presentations of new ideas based on gathered data.

A good cry cleanses the soul

After all is shed and done, your soul may be saved... but your contacts need help. They need Lensine. Lensine is the one contact lens solution for complete contact care... preparing, cleansing, and soaking.

There was a time when you needed two or more different lens solutions to properly prepare and maintain your contacts. No more. Lensine, from The Murine Company, makes caring for contact lenses as convenient as wearing them.

Just a drop or two of Lensine coats and lubricates your lens. This allows the lens to float more freely in the eye, reducing tearful irritation. Why? Because Lensine is a compatible, "isotonic" solution, very much like your eye's natural fluids.

Cleaning your contacts with Lensine retards the build-up of foreign deposits on the lenses. And soaking your contacts in Lensine between wearing periods assures you of proper lens hygiene. You get a free soaking-storage case with individual lens compartments on the bottom of every bottle of Lensine.

It has been demonstrated the improper storage between wearings permits the growth of bacteria on the lenses. This is a sure cause of eye irritation and in some cases can endanger your vision. Bacteria cannot grow in Lensine because it's sterile, self-sanitizing, and antiseptic.

Horn Optimistic for Season As Thomas, Drew Star at New London

By Rich Orloff
Sports Staff

With eyes on the Quantico and Penn Relays in May, the Montclair State track team, under the leadership of Coach George Horn, seems to be headed for quite a rewarding year. Participating in the U.S. Coast Guard Invitational Meet in New London, Connecticut, the team gave Dr. Horn a preview of things to come.

Outstanding performances from sophomore high-jumper Jim Thomas and transfer hurdler Paul Drew led the Indians to a seventh place finish out of 10 teams.

Thomas, the defending champion, took a second by leaping 6'6" in the high jump. He holds the current official MSC high jump record of 6'5½". Coach Horn asserts that he is "very consistent."

Drew also copped a second place in the 60-yard high hurdles, and set a track record in a preliminary heat. This record was surpassed in the final heat.

But the real surprise of the day was the freshmen team. "I took five freshman boys with me and every one that went up there came back with a medal or two," noted a beaming Horn.

Tommy Reaves shattered the freshman high jump record by leaping 6'2¾". Competing in the event for the first time this year, frosh Bill Rathbun stretched out for an impressive 19'11" in the long jump, for another second place finish.

The frosh relay team of Glenn Staudinger, Reaves, Demetrius Morris and Vic Mizzone missed a first place by seven-tenths of a second, winning their heat by 100 yards.

At present, Horn is preparing 12 men for the Collegiate Track Conference Championships, individual competition held at Queens College in March.

Pointing to the Colby Invitational in Waterville, Maine, on the docket for next year, the Coach proudly said, "It's quite a feather in our cap to be invited to one of these meets against these big-name schools."

"What we really need is an outdoor board track and more boys out for the team."

He then looked at the calendar and pointed to April. "That's when we had outdoors."

Woman Gymnasts

Beat Stroudsburg

Under the able assistance of coach Virginia Crossman, Montclair State's women's gymnastics team opened the 1969 season with a fabulous victory, defeating East Stroudsburg, 80.55 to 73.05. MSC swept first and second placed in the floor exercise, balance beam and uneven bars.

Kathy Hill, a senior, placed first in vaulting, the uneven bars and the balance beam. Linda Monaco, a freshman, took first place in the floor exercise with a winning score of 8.3.

Other top performers who contributed to the victory were Joann Coleman, Jane Cowell, Lyn Cross, Mary DeFrank, Sharon Hunter, Pauline Scholez and Sharon Toynbee. Donna Ezzi and Gail Peterson were unable to perform due to injuries.

The next home meet is today at 4 p.m. against Temple University.

Fencers Bring '69 Record to 8-2

The Montclair State fencing team flashed to three brilliant victories over the weekend bringing their record to 8-2 for the year. On Friday night, the team travelled by aerobus to Rochester, New York and proceeded to whip a highly touted Rochester Institute of Technology by the score of 19-8.

The following day saw the fencers journey to Buffalo where they duelled Hobart College and then faced the University of Buffalo. Both teams succumbed to the MSC fencing machine by the scores of 15-12 and 16-11, respectively.

As usual, Coach Walter Gaylor's swashbucklers were led by the vaunted sabre squad as captain Dale Rodgers and Dave Bryer won 9 bouts apiece, three in each meet. Jordan Denner chipped in with seven wins, going 3-0 against R.I.T. and Hobart. The team had a superb three-meet record of 25-2.

Todd Boepple led the foilsman with six victories. He also went 3-0 against R.I.T. Ken Zurich, Jim Robertson and Bob Critchley all contributed to a fine foil showing with 13 wins.

The epee squad, although facing the strongest squad of each of the three teams, fared well enough to account for a total of 11 victories. Mike Dawson, in his first year of fencing, had five victories to his credit and with able assistance from Dan Ehrigott, Bruce Kinter and Mark Ehrhart.

The qualifying preliminaries for the Mid-Atlantic Fencing Championship were held on Sunday as Rodgers and Bryer qualified in the two-match sabre squad event. They are the defending champions. In addition, they are entered in the individual category.

Rodgers also qualified in the individuals in epee. A master of all three weapons, he uses this particular one for the fencing aspect of the pentathlon which incorporates running, swimming, shooting, fencing and riding.

TOP Opens IM Season with Two Wins

By Wayne Potente
Sports Staff

The season is now two weeks old and last year's two league winners, the Lower Lounge S & A and TOP, the overall title winner, are leading their divisions.

The Lower Lounge team

(National League) routed the opposition in its first two games. Tom Testa was the ace in the opening game with 19 points on a 9 for 10 shooting performance from the floor as the Lounge ran over Phi Sigma Epsilon by a 77-21 count. The second game featured a 20 point performance by Vin Silvestri as the Lounge defeated Tau Sigma Delta, 73-23.

TOP (American League) meanwhile, had a rough time with a strong Psi Chi squad, but eventually pulled out a 41-35 victory with the help of Frank Rossi's 16 points. TOP's second game was another tough one, but they again managed to pull out a squeaker by defeating Phi Epsilon Kappa, 41-37.

Games involving National League contenders show the Pineapples with victories over the Wee Five and TOP's B Team by 72-39 and 70-53 counts; the Black Barons undefeated with 59-23 and 61-39 wins over Beta and the Wee Five; and Psi Chi's Nads owning a 1-1 record by rebounding from their loss to TOP to hand a 64-16 beating to Beta.

American League hopefuls, the Thundering Herd and Gamma Delta Chi, both sport 2-0 records. The Herd owns 60-34 and 62-30 victories over the Hustlers and the Wad Squad; while Gamma, with 29 and 33 point performances by Jim Masters, has beaten the Wolfpack 73-54, and Psi Sigma Epsilon 65-54.

A new intramural basketball league to be called the Federal League, will begin play this week. Games will be played in the College High Gym at 6, 7, 8 and 9 p.m. on the regularly scheduled intramural league nights.

COACH'S CORNER

The Recruiting Time

By Clary Anderson
Head Football Coach

The 1969 football season at Montclair State College is several months away, but plans for preparedness are in high gear. Director of Athletics, Bill Dioguardi, and the coaches are taking inventory, inspecting and ordering equipment, evaluating talent and "recruiting".

The new football coaching staff is taking form. Tim Sullivan will remain on the staff and will concentrate on line play. Tim's varsity wrestling team at MSC is enjoying a great season. Tom Testa, the highly successful freshman coach of last year, will move up to the varsity with those frosh and he will concentrate on defense. Dick Hapward, a North Carolina product, will move up from Montclair H. S. Dick has left teaching for private business and is available for coaching. Dick will probably handle the freshman team. Frank Tripucka, an All American Quarterback while at Notre Dame and a great pro for 15 years, will also coach. Frank will be invaluable in handling the offensive backs, the pass offense, the punters and in picking apart opposing defenses. When the coaching staff is completed some other coaching duties will be specifically pinpointed.

"Recruiting" means the attracting of potential football players who can be admitted to Montclair State. Perhaps as many as 100 transfers from other colleges, disenchanted players and service returnees are inquiring about Montclair. We are screening everyone. We hope some will be satisfactory. The New Jersey High School football coaches have been particularly helpful and cooperative. Hopefully Montclair State College will succeed in obtaining high caliber players.

There are many factors that contribute to the playing of football games. Good ball handling, a wide open pass offense, a stingy pass defense, the avoiding of penalties and injuries, and sound strategy are all important factors. However, effective blocking and tackling will still be the keynote to the winning of games. We are hopeful of making our football program extremely interesting so that we can attract young men who want to play good football.

GYMNASTS SCORE 2 VICTORIES

By Joe Macaluso

The Montclair State gymnastics team traveled to Queens College last Wednesday to score their most decisive victory of the season handling Queens a 131.71 to 41.00 setback. Co-captain Rick Schwarz spearheaded the victory with three first places in floor exercise, horse and a tie with teammate Ron Poling in the parallel bars.

Results were: long horse, Rick Schwarz (first), Dave Green (second), Roger Brown (third); side horse, Joe Gareffa (first), still rings, John Guenther (first), Ron Poling (second), Ralph Coscia (third); long horse, Schwarz (first), Green (second), Guenther (third); parallel bars, Schwarz and Poling (tie-first), Russ Spencer (third); high bar, Green (first), Schwarz (second), Jensen (third).

Saturday night saw the gymnasts defeat a strong West Chester State contingent by a 137.43 to 128.85 score. Rick Schwarz again stood out with two first places and two second places. Jon Guenther took another first place in the still rings. Dave Green came through with an outstanding 8.95 in the long horse.

Results were: long horse, Schwarz (first), and Green (third); still rings, Jon Guenther (first) and Poling (second); long horse, Green (first) and Schwarz (second); parallel bars, Nels Jensen (first), Schwarz (second), Poling (third), high bar, Schwarz (first), Jensen (second), Green (third).

Montclair Hoopsters Nab 20th Victory

By Mike Galos

Special to the Montclarion

Led by seniors Luther Bowen and Bob Lester, the Montclair State hoopsters rolled to their 20th victory of the season Saturday night with a 94-72 victory over Queens College at Queens, N.Y.

Bowen led all scorers with 33

points, his high point output of the season. Lester grabbed 25 rebounds and finished behind Bowen with 21 points.

Three Steals

The Indians were cold shooting at the start and trailed 17-12. Three straight baskets by Bowen, two coming on steals, and a basket by Mike Oakes after another Bowen steal, put them ahead for good, 20-17.

The win marked the third straight season in which the Indians have won 20 games, a feat accomplished only once before in New Jersey college basketball history by Monmouth.

Approaching 1000

Lester's 21 points gave him a total of 918 for his career and an outside chance for 1000 career points. He already has gone over the 1000 mark in career rebounds.

Bowen, Lester and Oakes will all be honored in ceremonies before the final home game tomorrow night against Jersey City State. The three seniors will be playing in their final regular season game for the Indians.

Grieco Sustains First Loss

Matmen Beat Post Fall to Maritime

By John Aneson and Tom Benn

The wrestlers of Montclair State had an up-and-down week as they first crushed C.W. Post by a score of 26-13 and were then soundly beaten by a powerful NY Maritime, 27-5. Maritime is rated in the top 20 of all small-college teams in the nation.

Captain Jim Grieco, Roy Genatt and Dave Cornelisse all pinned against Post. Mike Nuzzo and John Sutton won by decision while John Bellavia won by forfeit.

Against Maritime, a mental error cost Jim Grieco his first defeat in dual-meet competition. Figuring that he was ahead by a

SPORTSQUIZ

By Ken Tecza
Asst. Sports Editor

The sports staff of the MONTCLARION has compiled a number of sports questions and "defies" the students and faculty to come up with the answers. The questions will vary and deal with the past and present. Here are this week's "stumpers."

1. Who was the Yankee leftfielder in 1961, the year of the famous Maris-Mantle homerun duel?

2. He ran back the opening kickoff for the New York Giants in their famous 47-7 romp over the Chicago Bears in the 1956 NFL championship game.

3. He was Barry Kramer's backcourt partner for NYU in Kramer's senior year.

4. Name the two men to wear the uniforms of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Celtics.

5. He was the first Boston Red Sox "Bonus Baby" in the mid-50's.

6. What is Wilt Chamberlain's middle name?

7. He took over for Lou Gehrig at first base when the "iron-horse" ended his consecutive game string in 1939.

8. He was the only New York Met pitcher with a winning record in 1962, their first year in the National League.

9. At what New Jersey High School did Vince Lombardi once coach football?

10. Who hit the first homerun at Shea Stadium?
